

THE ORGANIZATION

The Legacy Land Project is a Pasadena nonprofit leading long-term recovery case management for survivors of the January 2025 Eaton Fire — the wildfire that destroyed more than 16,000 structures across Altadena and the surrounding communities. Its case managers carry survivors through the long arc of recovery: housing, FEMA and SBA applications, insurance, mental health, documentation, and the slow work of rebuilding a life.

THE CHALLENGE

Disaster case management is a paper-and-spreadsheet discipline. Case managers spent hours a day on documentation. Severity was triaged by instinct. Supervisors had no real-time view of caseload health. Aid applications were tracked by hand. Every staff change rebuilt institutional memory from scratch. With hundreds of survivors and a caseload still growing, the spreadsheet model could not scale with the recovery.
