

THE OPPORTUNITY

When a disaster strikes, thousands of survivors are triaged and tracked in spreadsheets, shared documents, and disconnected tools. Case managers lose hours a day to documentation. Supervisors have no real-time view of caseload health. Severity is a guess. No platform was built for this work — and the work only grows. The U.S. saw 23 billion-dollar disasters in 2025, and a University of Chicago

TRACTION

Live in production at The Legacy Land Project in Pasadena — hundreds of Eaton Fire survivors in active case management today. The Executive Director has seen the platform and wants it. Vijilant was not researched from the outside; it was built case by case, by a working Disaster Care Manager. The product moved from working v1 to fully-staged enterprise platform in the first half of 2026: Stage 7

THE ASK

$1.5M seed, raised as a SAFE with a post-money valuation cap. The round funds 24 months — core engineering team, three to five additional pilot deployments, HIPAA + SOC 2 + counsel buildout, and the first government procurement engagement — to a fundable Series A milestone.

THE PRODUCT

Vijilant is the first end-to-end platform built for disaster case management. One mobile-first, HIPAA-compliant system carries a survivor from digital intake through a 12-section clinical assessment that auto-generates a Triage Tier and a 0–1,000 Recovery Score, a personalized recovery plan, automated aid applications, in-app messaging between case manager and survivor, AI-drafted bilingual case notes

MARKET & MODEL

Vijilant sits at the intersection of two growing markets — crisis management software ($10.1B) and nonprofit case management software ($7.4B) — with no incumbent occupying it. SaaS pricing runs from $299/mo for small nonprofits to custom Government-tier contracts, with annual prepay at 20% off, three optional add-ons (white-label, API, priority SLA), and a Recovery Access Program.
